

DIRECT DEPOSIT - Instructions

River Valley Credit Union accepts Direct Deposit from any company, organization, or government agency. If your company is a River Valley sponsor, it already offers direct deposit and/or payroll deductions. Ask your payroll department about how to get started.

OR print the attached form, have it signed by a River Valley Member Service Representative, and give to your Payroll Department.

You'll need the information below to complete the form:

- River Valley Credit Union - Routing Number: 2422-7871-3
- Checking and/or Savings Account Number(s) – located on your statement or ask a branch employee. For your protection, River Valley does not give account numbers over the phone.
- Funds Availability – Funds from your Direct Deposit will be available as soon as they are received by River Valley Credit Union and electronically deposited into your account. Your employer should be able to tell you their schedule for transmission of payroll funds. Payrolls that are transmitted electronically via ACH, contain instructions from the issuer with specific date of posting. They cannot be posted before that date.

DIRECT DEPOSIT AUTHORIZATION

Employees requesting direct deposit complete and sign the authorization from which the payroll department retains on file. Some employees may wish to have part of their pay deposited into their checking and part deposited into their savings account. If the payroll system is capable of split deposits, offer it to employees to provide even greater freedom in allocating their pay.
